Gave this to a bride at her wedding shower (and it's counterpart - "Do You Know Your Groom?") and everyone liked it, trying to answer all the questions themselves. Are they really deep, thought-provoking questions? No, but it is just a fun thing to do together. It's not meant to be marriage counseling, people.

I needed to spend a few more dollars to get free shipping, so I ended up with this book. First of all, don't bother getting this and the groom book. Aside from a handful of questions, almost everything is interchangeable. I'll give credit where it is due though. I have known my partner for a decade and we came across a lot of new territory we'd never discussed. The good news is we guessed each others answers correctly!

I've only had a chance to "play" the first 10 questions or so, but so far, this is great!!! Nice, relaxing, and a great way to spend a lazy Saturday afternoon....some of the questions made us laugh, some ask more questions, and some made us remember the 'old times'....love it!

My Boyfriend and I have been asking each other questions out of the "do you know your bride" and "do you know your groom" books and we sit and laugh. It is a lot of fun, especially on a rainy night. Each question leads to more and more memories and stories to tell each other.

I bought this for a bridal shower gift for my future daughter in law, and Do You Know Your Groom to go with it. I was told it was well liked by the bride! I will update my review once I get more direct feedback from the busy future Bride. They will be married on Friday, October 31. Blessings...

My Groom and I bought this book and the companion (Do you know your groom) and had great fun one night answering all the questions. We surprised each other with some of the answers. Highly recommended to sit down with these books and take a break from wedding planning for some getting to know you fun.

It got us talking about more personal things but the questions were way too simplistic to even come close to stumping him. Was a good book to bypass some boring time but had the potential to be way better.

I proposed to my now fiancée 2 nights ago and already the stresses of marriage started to overwhelm us. We are both 22. I bought these two books so that we could spend a little time learning about each other. There are 100 questions. Some easier than others and you get to learn about each other and elaborate on things you already knew. We just traded off every other question. The partner book obviously is called "Do You Know Your Groom?" We really enjoyed these.
