Biergarten Cookbook

Synopsis

Sunshine, beer, and Brotzeit: What could be better? Bring the happiness of the Biergarten back to your own kitchen table with Biergarten Cookbook, your guide to the best recipes of Bavaria. Imagine a picnic filled with Obazda cheese spread, sausage salad, meat patties, roast pork, cheese spaetzle, dumplings, and traditional Bavarian desserts and cakes. The Biergarten is one of Bavaria's most beloved places, where freshly draught golden beer is enjoyed in the shade of chestnut trees and people are allowed to bring and share their own Brotzeit – home-cooked Bavarian food. Biergarten Cookbook shows you exactly what Bavarian cooks pack in their baskets so you can bring some of that magic and Bavarian food to your own celebrations.

I have eagerly awaited this book since I preordered it a few months ago. With no look inside feature I wasn't sure what to expect. I was afraid I was going to get some tired old recipes that people would have eaten in 1920. What I received was a beautifully photographed and well written take on how people eat in Bavarian Biergartens right now. There is a brief but informative essay about Biergarten history and current culture at the start of the book. Throughout the book there are several well thought out, beautifully illustrated and informative pages about such things as Bavarian beer purity, an intro to Bavarian beer and handy indexes of things like kid friendly recipes and vegetarian recipes. There are two pages of handy Bavarian phrases to help you fit in at the Biergarten. Luckily the book arrived just before I was going to the grocery store so I was able to try eight recipes over the weekend. All of the recipes came together exactly as anticipated and they were all really, really good. I picked up some really good bread at the bakery and I served it with Obatzda (Bavarian cheese spread) I also made a pear version of the Obatzda that was amazing. I also made radish flowers with quark dip (quark is a type of cheese that is becoming more available in America if you haven't seen it yet chances are you will be seeing it soon) and a chickpea spread with capers. I made two mustard recipes a sweet mustard and a hot tarragon mustard both came out great and my best advice when making them is to open all the windows in the kitchen, the vinegar smell was a bit more than I expected but it aired out quickly. I also made the Tyrolean Hash with eggs, it was the perfect recipe to use of the leftovers from a pork roast.
